

AI TOOLS THAT WORK

Ask the Document

Three real public notices, and what an AI chat did with them. Including a question it should not answer.

Tested October 4, 2026

Why this guide

Official notices are long, and it is easy to skim them wrong. I picked three: a gift card scam warning, a product recall and a heat safety page.

Instead of asking the AI what it knows, I pasted in the real text and told it to answer only from that text. If the answer is not in the text, it should say "Not in the text".

For each notice I added one question the text cannot answer. If the AI invents an answer to that one, you know to be careful.

The people and situations here are made up. The notices and the AI answers are real. This is not advice for your own situation.

How I tested

I used a free public chat demo, with no account and no payment: the Qwen3 demo on Hugging Face (huggingface.co/spaces/Qwen/Qwen3-Demo), model shown as Qwen3-235B-A22B.

I read the three pages on October 4, 2026 at about 4:19 AM Saudi time, and ran the chats from about 4:20 AM. That was four runs: one per notice, plus a follow-up on the recall. I ran each prompt once, so another run can answer differently.

I cut each page down to the parts that matter. The demo garbles dollar signs, so "about $155" became "about 155 dollars", and the degree symbol became "degrees F". I changed nothing else. The full pages are linked at the end.

Keep it private. This is a public demo. Never paste anything with your name, account numbers or card numbers.

EXAMPLE 1

The gift card text

Say a text tells you to pay a fee with gift cards, right now. The FTC has a page on gift card scams, so I copied the key parts of it.

I asked four questions. The fourth is the trap: the excerpt has no phone number. The prompt is at the end of the guide.

The page, shortened (FTC, read October 4, 2026)

Source:

consumer.ftc.gov/avoiding-reporting-gift-card-scams

Only scammers will tell you to buy a gift card, like a Google Play or Apple Card, and give them the numbers off the back of the card. No matter what they say, that's a scam. No real business or government agency will ever tell you to buy a gift card to pay them. Always keep a copy of your gift card and store receipt. Use them to report gift card scams to the gift card company and ask for your money back.

Scammers will say it's urgent. They will say to pay them right away or something terrible will happen. They don't want you to have time to think about what they're saying or talk to someone you trust.

Scammers will tell you which gift card to buy (and where). They might send you to a specific store - often Walmart, Target, CVS, or Walgreens.

Scammers will ask you for the gift card number and PIN. The card number and PIN on the back of the card let the scammer get the money you loaded onto the card, even if you still have the card itself.

What To Do If You Gave a Gift Card to a Scammer

If you bought a gift card and gave someone the numbers off the back of the card, that's a scam. Use your gift card and gift card store receipt for these next steps:

- Report the gift card scam to the gift card company right away. No matter how long ago the scam happened, report it.
- Ask for your money back. Some companies are helping stop gift card scams and might give your money back. It's worth asking.
- Tell the FTC at ReportFraud.ftc.gov. Every report makes a difference.

What the AI wrote

ANSWER, 8 SECONDS

Scammers want the gift card number and PIN from the back of the card to access the loaded funds.

Report the scam to the gift card company, ask for a refund, and file a report with the FTC at ReportFraud.ftc.gov.

Yes, the text lists Walmart, Target, CVS, and Walgreens as stores scammers may direct victims to.

Not in the text.

What it got right

- All four answers match the text, including "Not in the text" for the phone number. It did not invent one.
- The three steps are in the right order.

What needed fixing

- Before the four answers it printed about 260 words of its own working-out, though I asked for one or two lines each. Harmless, but I cut it here and show only the four answers.
- "ask for a refund" and the FTC step are squeezed into one line. The page says to ask for your money back. Read the page for the exact steps.
- It did not mention that the page says to keep the card and the store receipt. I did not ask.

EXAMPLE 2

The recall notice

Say you own a pressure washer. This recall notice from the Consumer Product Safety Commission is real, and its steps matter.

The trap here is the warranty length. The notice does not give one.

The notice, as excerpted (CPSC, read October 4, 2026)

Source: cpsc.gov/Recalls/2026/SUGIFT-Recalls-SUGIFT-Pressure-Washers-Due-to-Serious-Risk-of-Injury-or-Death-From-Shock-and-Electrocution-Hazards

Name of Product: SUGIFT Electric Pressure Washers,
Model LTBBHG006

Hazard: The recalled pressure washers lack an integral ground-fault circuit-interrupter (GFCI) and, because the power cord is short, it may encourage use of an extension cord, posing serious risks of injury or death from shock and electrocution hazards.

Remedy: Refund

Recall Date: August 13, 2026

Units: 13

Consumer Contact: SUGIFT by email at steven@sugift.net.

Remedy details: Consumers should stop using the recalled pressure washers immediately and contact SUGIFT for a full refund. Consumers will be asked to destroy the pressure washer by cutting the power cord in half (the product should be completely turned off and unplugged from power outlet) and send a photo of the destroyed pressure washer to steven@sugift.net. Consumers should then dispose of the destroyed recalled product.

Incidents/Injuries: None reported

Sold Online At: bestbuy.com from July 2025 through July 2026 for about 155 dollars.

Importer: SUGIFT, INC., of Albany, NY

Manufactured In: China

Recall number: 26-699

What the AI wrote

ANSWER, 4 SECONDS

Owners should stop using the recalled pressure washers immediately.

13 units were sold online at bestbuy.com.

None reported.

Not in the text.

What it got right

- "None reported" and "Not in the text" are right. It did not invent a warranty.

What needed fixing

- Question 1 asked what owners do first, and "stop using it" is a correct answer to that. But the notice has more steps: email SUGIFT for a refund, cut the cord, photograph it and send the photo. Someone who stops reading at the first line would not get the refund. My question was too narrow, and the AI answered it literally.
- Question 2 is half right. The notice says 13 units, sold at bestbuy.com from July 2025 through July 2026 for about 155 dollars. The answer says "13 units were sold online at bestbuy.com", which drops the dates and price and blurs recalled with sold.

The follow-up

In the same chat I wrote: "You left out steps. Using only the text, list every step an owner is asked to take, in order, as a numbered list. Include who to contact and what to send them."

ANSWER, 9.2 SECONDS

1. Stop using the recalled pressure washer immediately.
2. Contact SUGIFT by email at steven@sugift.net for a full refund.
3. Destroy the pressure washer by cutting the power cord in half (ensure the product is turned off and unplugged).
4. Send a photo of the destroyed pressure washer to steven@sugift.net.
5. Dispose of the destroyed product.

What it got right

- All five steps match the notice, in order, with the right email address and the right order of actions.

Lesson: if the answer is a list of steps, ask for every step in order. A short summary can drop the one that matters.

The heat page

Safety first. This example is only about how to read a notice. It is not medical advice. If someone may have heat stroke, call your emergency number now. Do not wait for a chat.

Say you work outside this week. The National Weather Service page on heat illness is worth reading before you need it.

The trap: the page gives no "dangerous heat index" number.

The page, shortened (National Weather Service, read October 4, 2026)

Source: weather.gov/safety/heat-illness

Heat Cramps: Symptoms: Painful muscle cramps and spasms usually in legs and abdomen. Heavy sweating. First Aid: Apply firm pressure on cramping muscles or gently massage to relieve spasm. Give sips of water unless the person complains of nausea, then stop giving water. Seek immediate medical attention if cramps last longer than 1 hour.

Heat Exhaustion: Symptoms: Heavy sweating; weakness or tiredness; cool, pale, clammy skin; fast, weak pulse; muscle cramps; dizziness, nausea or vomiting; headache; fainting. First Aid: Move person to a cooler environment, preferably a well air-conditioned room. Loosen clothing. Apply cool, wet cloths or have person sit in a cool bath. Offer sips of water. Seek immediate medical attention if the person vomits, symptoms worsen or last longer than 1 hour.

Heat Stroke: Symptoms: Throbbing headache; confusion; slurred speech; nausea; dizziness; body temperature above 103 degrees F; hot, red, dry or damp skin; rapid and strong pulse; fainting; loss of consciousness. First Aid: Call 911 or get the victim to a hospital immediately. Heat stroke is a severe medical emergency. Delay can be fatal. Move the victim to a cooler, preferably air-conditioned, environment. Reduce body temperature with cool cloths or bath. Use fan if heat index temperatures are below the high 90s. A fan can make you hotter at higher temperatures. Do NOT give fluids.

What the AI wrote

ANSWER, 8.8 SECONDS

Heavy sweating; weakness or tiredness; cool, pale, clammy skin; fast, weak pulse; muscle cramps; dizziness, nausea or vomiting; headache; fainting.

No.

If cramps last longer than 1 hour.

Not in the text.

What it got right

- All four answers match the page. "No" on fluids matches the page's "Do NOT give fluids" for heat stroke.
- "Not in the text" for the heat index is right. The page mentions a heat index only for when to use a fan.

What needed fixing

- My question said "for heat stroke", so "No" is right. But a bare "No" travels badly: the same page says to give sips of water for cramps and exhaustion. Someone who only remembers "No fluids" could get that wrong.
- Even a complete short answer is not first aid. For health pages, read the whole page.

What I took from this

All four trap questions got the right answer: "Not in the text" every time. The problems were somewhere else. The answers left things out, squeezed two steps into one line, or gave a bare "No" with its condition missing.

So before you rely on an answer about a notice:

1. Paste the real text, only the parts you need.
2. Tell it to say "Not in the text" when it is not there.
3. Add one question the text cannot answer.
4. Ask for every step, in order.
5. Read the page yourself for anything that matters.

The prompts

Where the notice goes, it says [PASTE THE TEXT HERE]. Put your own text there.

QUESTIONS:

1. List the symptoms of heat exhaustion.
2. For heat stroke, should you give the person fluids?
3. When should heat cramps get medical attention?

4. What heat index is considered dangerous?

Limits and sources

- One public demo model, one day, one run per prompt. Another run can answer differently, including wrongly.
- I did not test on a phone.
- The excerpts are shortened and slightly edited, as explained above. Read the full pages.
- This is not legal, safety or medical advice. In an emergency, call your local emergency number.
- The recall is a real notice about one company's product. This guide says nothing about whether you own it.
